Before officials of the Aero Club of France, starters, timers, movie cameras and a crowd of sportsmen in the Bois de Boulogne at daybreak this morning, Gabriel Poullain again demonstrated that his bicycle airplane, propelled just like any ordinary bicycle, is capable of flying. His previous tests were not recorded officially, but this time after he had raised the machine more than four feet off the ground for distances ranging from thirty to forty-five feet he was handed the Peugeot prize of 10,000 francs, offered ten years ago by Robert Peugeot to the first aviator who succeeded in doing what Carus failed to do by the force of his own muscles.

The long awaited message from the father of George Harbough, who died in the American Hospital Thursday night as the result of a suicide pact with his mother, Mme. de Guise-Hite, arrived at the hospital this morning. George Harbough, Sr., an American oil man and the first husband of Mme. de Guise-Hite, from whom she was divorced twenty years ago, is said to have promised aid in the future.

The body of young Harbough has been taken to the American morgue in the basement of the American Church of the Holy Trinity. No arrangements regarding burial are to be made until the mother is able to give instructions in this matter.
